

ENGAGEMENT, MOTIVATION AND REMOTE WORKING

A toolkit for leaders

WELCOME

During the unprecedented current global situation it is likely that at some point in the near future you and your team may need to work remotely.

During these times of remote working, keeping your team engaged, motivated and resilient can be a challenge, especially if this is not something you have done before.

This toolkit of resources has been designed to enable you and your team to work together, keep motivated and deliver results in these difficult times.

PART ONE - THE BASICS

TIPS ON LEADING REMOTE WORKERS

Kory Kogon is FranklinCovey's Vice President of Field Development. Kory is also one of the authors of the Wall Street Journal bestseller "The 5 Choices: The Path to Extraordinary Productivity", in addition to "Project Management Essentials for the Unofficial Project Manager" and "Presentation Advantage".

It's not uncommon for leaders to worry about managing remote workers. Without seeing them in the office every day, it's easy to make assumptions, but did you know that research shows that remote workers often keep longer hours and are more productive than in-office workers? Too often managers equate low face time with low work ethic or output.

To avoid this unconscious bias and the damage it can do to your leadership legacy, try the following tips:

- Focus on what your remote workers have accomplished, not on whether you can see them accomplishing it.
- Build trust with your remote workers during your one-on-ones. Take the first five minutes to get to know them personally, inquire about non-work issues, and ask them for feedback on how you can communicate better.
- Remote workers can't just drop in for helpful feedback, so clarify your performance expectations frequently.
- Make your check-ins more interactive. Screen-share slide decks and spreadsheets so that you both see what's going on.

PARADIGMS

HOW ARE WE SEEING THINGS AS A TEAM?

KEY INSIGHT

HOW YOUR TEAM SEES THE CURRENT SITUATION WILL HAVE A HUGE IMPACT ON THEIR BEHAVIOUR AND THEIR RESULTS.

WHAT IS A PARADIGM?

Paradigms are the way we see, understand, and interpret the world—our mental map.

PARADIGMS

APPLY IT WITH YOUR TEAM - PARADIGMS

- Ask your team members to watch the videos on the previous page.
- Get together on a video conference and ask them to complete the following exercise:

STEP 1

TASK: List five words that describe how you feel about the current work situation and how it is affecting your productivity and performance.

STEP 2

SHARE: Socialise the words you have written down with each other and look for commonalities.

STEP 3

ASK: What do these words tell us about our paradigm regarding the current situation? How might that affect our behaviour, our results, our relationships?

STEP 4

TASK: Now write down five words you'd like to say about the current situation and your productivity.

STEP 5

SHARE: Identify how your paradigm needs to change to make the five new words happen.

INFLUENCE

WHAT CAN WE CONTROL AND WHAT CAN'T WE CONTROL?

KEY INSIGHT
